Alternative Entry Pathways Scheme
(Undergraduate Programs)

The Alternative Entry Pathways Scheme for undergraduate programs is designed to assist Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants who are interested in pursuing a tertiary education. The scheme considers a range of factors in addition to formal education, such as your employment history, academic abilities, personal interests, community involvement and references.

Under the scheme, applicants are eligible for up to an additional five bonus rank points (or OP equivalent) to assist with your entry into The University of Queensland. Certain program prerequisites may be waived if you can provide a compelling case to demonstrate your suitability for your preferred program based on work experience or training.
