Are you passionate about improving health outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people?

If you answered “YES”, study medicine at The University of Queensland.

Pathways to Medicine for Indigenous Australians

The University of Queensland is committed to increasing the number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students studying medicine. UQ, together with the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Unit, has designed the Alternative Entry Pathways Scheme to encourage more of our mob to study medicine with us.

What is the Doctor of Medicine?

UQ’s Doctor of Medicine (MD) is a four-year postgraduate program that is one of the most highly regarded medical degrees in Australia. During your studies you’ll master clinical sciences and a range of practical skills to prepare you for the challenges and rewards of being a doctor.

Before studying the MD, you must have completed an undergraduate degree.

There are two pathways into the MD:

- Provisional Entry (for Year 12 students)
- Graduate Entry (for university graduates)
Eligibility requirements

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Provisional entry - Year 12 students</th>
<th>Graduate entry - university graduates</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Applicants must be in Year 12 and eligible for an Overall Position (OP) or equivalent</td>
<td>• Applicants must have successfully completed a bachelor’s degree from an accredited institution or be studying the final year of a bachelor’s program</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Applicants must have passed the subject prerequisites of their preferred first degree</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

2018 Provisional entry intake closing date: Monday 23 October 2017

2018 graduate entry intake closing date: Monday 7 August 2017

How to apply

1. Complete the application form for MD (Provisional) or MD (Graduate) and submit all required documents.
2. If shortlisted for entry, you will be invited to attend an interview.
3. Both your application and interview performance count towards you being recommended for the MD for both Provisional and Direct entry.

Further information

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Unit
Level 2, UQ Bookshop Building (#4)
The University of Queensland
St Lucia, Queensland, 4072
Phone: +61 7 3346 7511

CRICOS Provider Number 00025B